The Los Angeles Unified School District Board of Education (LAUSD Board) engaged Collaborate to develop an outreach plan to engage all District stakeholders for the purpose of collecting a wide range of information that could be used to inform the Board as it begins the search process for the next superintendent of LAUSD.

Given the significance of this position—especially during one of the most challenging years for public education in the nation—it was paramount to everyone that this outreach touched and captured the viewpoints of all stakeholders in the process, especially those who are often not included. In fact, during the outreach process, many stakeholders made a point to mention their appreciation at being included in this comprehensive outreach.

At the outset, Collaborate conducted in-depth interviews with all seven LAUSD Board members and their staff, as well as representatives from district unions, including those for teachers, administrators, maintenance workers and police. These interviews enabled our team to: 1) gather important content, context, and insights that we used in the creation of the primary information-gathering tool in our outreach activities: a stakeholder-driven survey mainly conducted online; and 2) work with Board Members to identify preferred groups for outreach and existing frameworks for communication.

After the initial outreach phase, Collaborate created a survey to obtain stakeholder input. We created a media kit that we distributed to stakeholder groups including Board Member Offices, Council Offices, Neighborhood Councils, NGOs and Non-Profit Organizations, and educational affinity groups to distribute the survey. Using street teams, we also visited 129 schools with a high SENI rating to gather feedback for the survey on-site during student pickup and dropoff. In addition to the survey, Collaborate hosted 14 facilitations. Each Board Member hosted two facilitations; in addition, we held a number of facilitations and focus groups with key stakeholders.
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Over this eight-week outreach effort, our engagement efforts resulted in the 28,569 total members of the LAUSD stakeholder community providing input via the survey (complete and partially complete survey responses). Furthermore, the survey was available in the eight most widely spoken languages in LAUSD, including English, Spanish, Russian, Korean, Armenian, Tagalog, Mandarin, and Arabic. All focus groups and facilitated listening sessions were also simultaneously translated into Spanish, some were in Spanish with translation to English, and one session was translated into Korean.

An overarching theme of our engagement is that LAUSD stakeholders want to see a superintendent plugged into the particular needs, culture and inner workings of the district and region at large. In addition, many stakeholders feel they are not listened to; that they hear updates about their local school and the District from the news or through forwarded emails, instead of from the Superintendent or the Board. We believe our extensive experience doing large-scale, culturally competent communication helped stakeholders feel comfortable sharing insights and being honest about their particular experiences in the district.

What follows below is a summary of the survey, as well as stakeholder presentations, focus groups, facilitated listening sessions, and street teams.

Collaborate would like to express its thanks to all LAUSD Board Members for engaging our team to create a transparent process of participation for LAUSD stakeholders in the selection of the District’s next superintendent. Without the high level of engagement and guidance from the Board, including each Board Member’s leadership in the facilitated listening sessions, this outreach campaign would not have been successful. It was truly a total team effort.
SUMMARY FINDINGS / RESULTS

The summary below presents a snapshot of the key questions asked in the survey relative to respondents’ school experience and outlook, the goals laid out by the Board of Education, and responses to specific questions about qualities the next superintendent of LAUSD should have.

QUESTION 1

28,569 RESPONSES

Represented the highest frequency of survey takers

- Parents/Guardians/Caregivers: 46.91%
- Teachers/Educators: 18.93%
- Classified Employees: 14.35%
- Students: 10.77%

QUESTION 5

14,282 RESPONSES

Of those responding to whether they or their student is enrolled in a Magnet or Dual Language Program

ASSET PACKET
AND MEDIA KIT

To aid Board Members and their staff in the promotion of the survey and facilitate listening sessions, our team compiled a comprehensive document with several resources, including:

- Central Calendar;
- Survey Link, texting code, and QR Code;
- Creative Elements;
- Community Toolkits in English and Spanish;
- Facilitated Listening Session Run of Show and Talking Points in English and Spanish;
- Facilitated Listening Session Presentation in English and Spanish;
- Facilitated Listening Session Pre-Recorded Video Presentation by English and Spanish Facilitators;
- Suggested Outreach Scripts to Promote Facilitated Listening Sessions; and
- Instructions on How Survey Can be Mailed
FOCUS GROUPS

To further enhance our engagement efforts, our team conducted focus groups with AALA, CAC, PAC, DELAC, SEIU, CSEA, the Teamsters, UTLA, the Superintendent’s Advisory Council, and a community based organization focus group. Participants in the focus groups expressed a number of concerns, opinions, and thoughts on the next superintendent and related issues, including:

- Preferring a superintendent who supports adult education—LAUSD is a leader in this, and it should not be an afterthought;
- Preferring a superintendent who understands the importance of prioritizing special education;
- Familiarity with the disparities within the LAUSD community, understanding of the barriers and systemic inequalities some LAUSD children face;
- Teaching and/or administrative experience;
- Actively engages the community, cares about it, sees it as not just customers;
- A superintendent with with considerable awareness of LAUSD and its systems; and
- Not someone charter friendly.

Focus group summaries can be found in Appendix B.
As previously laid out in our outreach plan, Collaborate successfully scheduled and coordinated 14 virtual facilitated listening sessions, with two per Board District. During these sessions, our team provided participants with the purpose of these facilitations, an overview of the process and the survey, and a number of resources they could access to both offer additional feedback, during and after a given session—and where they could take the survey itself. The facilitations included were held in English, Spanish, and Korean.

The facilitated listening sessions proved to be a valuable trove of anecdotal information. Some of the notable comments made during these sessions about the next superintendent and other issues included:

- An individual that will fight for more funding for LAUSD;
- Someone who is a “bridge-builder” and support all schools to increase performance;
- Experience as an educator and/or administrator, especially during the pandemic;
- Concerns regarding virtual learning and ensuring special education students receive adequate resources;
- Preparing students to be a part of the future workforce; and
- Importance of equity and representation.

Summaries of each of these sessions can be found in Appendix C, where they are organized by Board District.
STREET TEAMS

Method Campaigns, our street team partner, led with surgical precision the on-the-ground outreach efforts at school sites. Partnering newer tactics such as using tablets for easy data entry, with years of LAUSD experience that allowed street team members to pivot through COVID obstacles and build a team that could speak Spanish, Korean, Armenian and several other languages to better understand the concerns of the average family. In total, our street teams visited 129 school sites and exceeded expectations collecting at least 960 fully completed surveys, averaging over seven surveys per school site.

For a list of the 129 school sites visited by our street teams and pictures taken during the Street Team Activations, see Appendix D.
